You are financially responsible for all dental services rendered. Dental insurance companies will not verify specific coverages. As a courtesy, we try to approximate what they will possibly pay toward your treatment. For many of our services, we have you initially pay a portion of the total fee. This amount is based on your estimated insurance coverage. You are still ultimately responsible for all fees incurred for services rendered.

Dental insurance plans rarely cover entire treatment costs. Your benefits are determined by factors such as:

a. Your cost for the policy
b. Your eligibilty
c. A deductible clause
d. A table of allowances
e. A dollar limit on covered services
f. Or any combination of the above

Most dental insurance plans are designed to help minimize dental expenses, not cover them completely. For most people the cost of a dental policy that would cover needed services 100% would cost more than the treatment itself.

Occasionally, a dental insurance company will attempt to delay payments by requesting unnecessary or inappropriate records, stating they have not received a claim or requested records or stating claim is under review by a claim examiner.

If such a problem arises, we may ask you to contact your insurance carrier or your personnel department for help. As always, we will be as cooperative as possible with your insurance carrier. Many times insurance carriers will handle a claim promptly because of the persistence of the individual patient who is paying the premiums.

We are able to wait a maximum of 6 weeks for payment by your insurance carrier. After six weeks from the date services are rendered you will need to make payment in full, then be reimbursed when your insurance carrier pays. We wait six weeks for insurance payment as a courtesy to our insured patients.
